Explorers

North America was home to many people before Christopher Columbus arrived. We call these people Native Americans or American Indians. Early Native Americans came to the Americas from other places. Some scientists think that early Americans came from Asia. People have been living in North America for more than 11,000 years. Native Americans developed many different rich cultures.

Christopher Columbus was looking for a shorter and safer sea route to Asia. He never made it to Asia. Instead he landed in the Americas in 1492. After Columbus, many other European explorers came to the Americas. Some were looking for gold or other riches. Others wanted to claim land for their rulers. Still others wanted to bring Christianity to the Native Americans. In the 1500s Spanish explorers visited lands including what is now Florida and New Mexico. In 1673 the French explored the Mississippi River. Later a French explorer traveled down the Mississippi River to the Gulf of Mexico. He claimed land for France.
