RACE

Read. Answer. Cite. Explain. Grammar, spelling, and handwriting count.

Once upon a time, a man lived in a gloomy basement, where he worked all day long. Even so, he was happy because he sang as he worked.

Above the poor man lived a rich man, who worried all day long about his money. This made him miserable. Being in a bad mood, he really hated to hear the poor man singing.

He wanted the poor man to feel bad, like he did. He thought if the poor man felt bad, he might stop singing. He thought if the poor man had money, he too might worry. So the rich man gave the poor man a big sack of money

The poor man was happier than ever— until he realized that someone might steal the money from him. So he decided to hide it. But no place seemed safe enough. There was nothing he could do— except worry.

The poor man worried until he grew thin and pale. He no longer felt like singing.

One day, he gave the money back to the rich man. “I can live without this money,” he said. “But I cannot live without my song.”

What is the moral of this story? What does it teach you?
