In Greek mythology, Zeus and Hera were the leaders of the Greek gods. They were husband and wife. Hera sometimes became angry with Zeus when he spent too much time away from home.

Sometimes, Zeus went to the mountains to play with the forest creatures who lived there. Hera always chased after him because she thought Zeus was wasting time. But every time Hera entered the forest, a charming creature named Echo chatted with her and distracted her until Zeus had escaped.

When Hera figured out Echo had been tricking her, she was furious. “Your talk has made a fool of me!” she screamed. “From now on you will have nothing to say, except what others say to you first!”

From that day on, poor Echo could only repeat the last word of what others said.
