ELA – Reading (5 points each.)

Shelley Langdon couldn't wait for summer vacation to start. This year her family was going to rent a beach house on the Outer Banks in North Carolina. Shelley had always heard that these barrier islands were beautiful, but she'd never been there.

To get to their beach house, the Langdons drove for hours. Finally, they crossed a bridge over the sound. When Shelley's dad came off the bridge and made a right, Shelley was amazed. She could see water on both sides of her. On one side, the sound was blue and sparkling, full of boats. On the other, waves crashed against golden sand.

The Langdon's house, like all the others near it, was up on stilts. A wooden walkway led down from the deck to the beach. Shelley hurriedly pulled on her bathing suit and ran down to the water. There, she was in for a surprise! Out beyond the breakers were two porpoises, leaping and frolicking in the waves!
